

RUNNING HEAD: Counterargument

Counterargument

Crystal Vining

PHI 103: Informal Logic

Instructor: Paul Pistone

April 15, 2017

[no notes on this page]

❖ Revised argument

P1: social media is a replacement form of communication that people use

P2: since social media is on the rise interactions have become weakened through the use of social media.

P3: social media lacks the necessities needed when people build relationships with each other.

Conclusion: for these reasons, social media hinders interpersonal relationships.

❖ Counterargument

P1: social media is a form of interaction that people use to communicate quickly with one another.

P2: communication now, with social media has broadened entirely.

P3: social behaviors from the dependence of social media has had a positive effect on individuals.

Conclusion: therefore, social media can be used to enhance social interpersonal relationships.

Premise 1: There are many ways that people use when it comes to communicating with others. Some ways of communication are, face-to-face, telephone, sign language, internet forums which in the end results through social media. How people socialize through social media is shared throughout pictures including messaging back and forth. Through this new technology that has grown over the year's social media provides the intellectual increase of its possibilities through interpersonal relationships.

Premise 2: Exchanging information today has been broadened by the use of social media. Social media provides different social networking through services as well as being given the opportunity to create and maintain employee to employer relationships near and far. "Social networking allows individuals to communicate by way of information, supplying the ground user generated media" (Bratu, S. 2016). Social media has ways of performing visual interaction across the world, just as it would be if you were in the same room with someone.

Premise 3: With the use of social media behavior from and individual relates to the company that individual keeps along with the associates they acquire along the way. The behavior of a person can be influenced by what they are seeing or taking from by another person through the social media use. Having the same conversation over and over with the assistance of media tends to sometimes take the pressure off from the individual showing their true self.

Conclusion: Relationships now in this present time are being enhanced by social media. This is due to social media gives one the upper hand (advances) in communicating with others at their own pace. This way there will be no pressure involved toward the other person. The enhancement can also come giving the opportunity for people who are far away, say on the other sides of the world, it gives them a way to interact while sharing each other's company through togetherness in the end.

Reference

BRATU, S. (2016). THE CRITICAL ROLE OF SOCIAL MEDIA IN CRISIS COMMUNICATION. Linguistic & Philosophical Investigations, 15232-238.