Your ASSIGNMENT

Create an outline for a research essay based on the information you found in Lesson 1. Your outline must include a claim, main ideas that support your claim, and details from sources that back up each main idea.

As you build your outline, you are free to find new sources and to get rid of old sources that you no longer find helpful. However, your new sources must meet the requirements from the Lesson 1 assignment: They must be credible and relevant, and at least one must represent a different medium from the others. In Lesson 3, you will use this outline to write a research paper.

Your outline should include the following elements:

- A claim that expresses the ultimate point of your essay about a historical hoax
- At least two main ideas that support the claim
- Supporting points and pieces of evidence that back up each main idea
- Information about the source of each piece of evidence
- An introduction, body, and conclusion
- At least three credible and relevant sources from at least two different media

You should have completed a draft of this assignment in the activity before this one. If you haven't done so, go back and complete that activity now.

Tips for SUCCESS

Ask yourself these questions as you revise:

- Does my claim say something broad enough to cover the scope of the whole outline but narrow enough to be direct and specific?
- Do my main ideas directly support my claim? Would they sound natural if added to my claim after the word because?
- Do I have enough evidence to support my main ideas and any supporting points that fall under those main ideas? Does that evidence come from credible sources?
- Is my outline easy to follow? Does it arrange ideas in a way that will make sense to another reader, especially my teacher? Do I follow the guidelines for structuring a traditional outline?

Scoring RUBRIC

Use this rubric to determine how well you're meeting the criteria for the assignment.
