

On September 22, 2016 our HUN 180 class took a field trip to the customs house. Professor H. wanted the class and I to choose either the Alexander Hamilton U.S customs house, Lower Manhattan or the train, to write about our observations. I decided to write about Lower Manhattan- Bowling Green.

It is 3:30pm when my class and I arrived at the lower Manhattan-Bowling Green train station. Lower Manhattan is such a busy place, I seen so many tourist, and people who looked like they are business people . As the class and I were walking around Bowling Green I noticed people seated on benches enjoying the cool breeze. The ambience there was so relaxed. I also seen a lot of ice cream man selling ice cream and it was not cheap, it was $4!. There was a lot of tourist walking around they looked really happy to be on Lower Manhattan. I Seen amazing artists who were there waiting to draw people for $20 for a full face. As the class and I were walking to cross the street to head to the Customs house, I noticed that the architecture of the buildings were quite beautiful. The buildings in Lower Manhattan are pretty old. Especially the building that is a bank called Citi. Under the name "Citi Bank" lies another that reads first class. I know that from history, that was the elite group who travelled in first class on ships.

I looked at my watch and it was 4pm. It was time for me to get back to my part of town. I could not imagine how time just flew!. I will definitely come back to enjoy the great scenery of Lower Manhattan.
