Suspects

Timothy Masters, a 15-year-old high school student, saw the body but did not report it, because he thought it was a mannequin. Masters lived with his father in a mobile home near the murder scene.

In a search of his room, investigators found a knife collection, pornography, and writings about violence.

Dr. Richard Hammond was an eye surgeon whose bedroom window overlooked the murder scene. He was arrested in 1995 for secretly filming women in his bathroom. He committed suicide without ever being named as a suspect.
